

Environmental Procurement Policy

Playrite Limited is committed to environmentally responsible business practices. Although the company acknowledges that its process can result in environmental impacts and pollution, they look for every opportunity to minimise any impact on the environment.

To ensure that all considerations are taken into account Playrite regularly review our supply chain to ensure that the manufacturing of products and construction activities are sustainable and provide long-term benefits to the environment, the economy and the wider local community.

At Playrite, we...

- Where possible, integrate environmental management system practices with existing quality, health and safety and business management systems.
- Regularly set and monitor the achievement of environmental objectives to promote continuous improvement.
- Assess environmental aspects and impacts prior to starting any new activity, project or building new facilities.
- Encourage waste minimisation and recycling throughout the company and during the life cycle of our products.
- Minimise the risk of pollution using controlled methods of containing, reporting and cleaning up in the unlikely event of an accident.
- Work with our supply chain to encourage best practices where possible to minimise their environmental impact and deliver sustainable solutions

As part of its environmental strategy, Playrite carefully works with suppliers that have processes in place that help to reduce their overall environmental impact.

These include:

- Minimising waste within the company's operations and packaging
- Reduce the impact of deliveries by using local suppliers for its raw materials.
- Conserving resources by recommending a regular maintenance programme to extend the life of the surface.

Economic Benefits:

- Complying with the principles of the International Labour Organisation (ILO) with respect to employees' human rights and conditions of employment.
- Ensuring slavery by is not occurring in any of its operations or the operations of any of its supply chain by frequently evaluating every aspect of its manufacturing processes.

The Playrite Environmental Policy is implemented and delegated through line management and staff are made aware of the environmental policy in place. All staff members are required to adhere to this policy where possible.

Playrite formally reviews the policy on an annual basis and measures progress against industry standards.
